

FLM&MDA 399. University Teaching. 4 Units.
X Quarter, 20XX
Professor X

Course Overview:

UCI requires academic assessment for 399 course credits, distinct from labor expectations as Teaching Assistants.

This course will focus on professional development related to pedagogy in Film and Media Studies. Normatively, students will meet with the instructor for weekly sessions to discuss pedagogical strategies. For the final project, students will produce one of the following materials, which are commonly required for academic positions after graduation:

1. A one-page teaching philosophy statement.
2. A one-page diversity, equity, and inclusion statement.
3. A syllabus for an undergraduate class (may be a core course or an elective, may or may not be related to the course for which the student is TAing).
4. An academic CV.
5. An academic webpage.
6. A one- or two-page paper that reflects on your teaching this quarter, including strategies that you found particularly effective or those that you might improve upon.

Students will normatively enroll in repeated 399s in FMS as they TA across the 85, 86, and 87 series or the 101 series, so students may choose any one of the above options to develop for each class in different quarters. Students may revise previous submissions from other 399s, but resubmissions should reflect substantive redevelopment.

The final project is due to the instructor X DATE by X TIME. Submissions should be sent via email as an attachment (PDF or Word doc), not as a link to Google Docs; for a website, a link may be emailed.

Grading Option: Satisfactory/unsatisfactory only.

Disability accommodations:

Any accommodations you require for this course should be requested by contacting the Disability Services Center (which serves students): <https://dsc.uci.edu/>.

Note: Any accommodations you require as a TA should be requested through Disability Management Services (which serves employees via Human Resources): <https://accessibility.uci.edu/accommodations/Employee-Accommodations.php>.

Restrictions: Limited to Teaching Assistants in Film and Media Studies.

Repeatability: May be repeated for credit unlimited times.